

ABSTRACT

An improved spinnerbait lure having a frame with at least one arm formed from an integral length of polymeric material and at least one blade secured to the frame. Preferably, the frame has upper and lower arms where at least the upper arm
5 has particular vibratory properties from an oblong cross-section and the head of a jig is embedded in the lower arm. A transparent polymeric material such as polycarbonate can be used.

10

15

20

25

30